SimService named part of Denmark's growth elite by Børsen

SimService continues impressive growth and is once again named part of Denmark's growth elite by the Danish financial newspaper, Børsen.

For the third year in a row, SimService has been appointed the coveted Gazelle award that is only given to the fastest growing companies in Denmark. Selected by the Danish financial newspaper, Børsen, the awards are presented annually and are based on key growth and profitability metrics. To be selected, a company must have experienced significant and continuous growth and at least doubled its revenues or gross profits over a four-year period. The Danish Gazelle Awards are synonymous with exceptional business achievement.

Commenting on this year's award, Kim Wiig Kvist, CEO SimService said: "We are immensely proud to receive such a prestigious award for the third time. It recognises our hard working and dedicated employees as well as our loyal customers. The market is evolving with technology innovation at the heart of our product offering. SimService is one of very few companies who have been recipients of the Gazelle Award on three occasions."

SimService became part of the Wireless Logic Group (www.wirelesslogic.com) in July 2015. As part of a Europe-wide provider of M2M Managed Services, the group now manages in excess of 2 million SIM subscriptions controlling multiple devices across IoT/M2M applications.

Oliver Tucker, Group CEO of Wireless Logic commented: "This award is an endorsement of SimService's continuing commitment to be at the forefront of the IoT/M2M connectivity market in Denmark. We congratulate Kim and his team and are delighted that their drive, focus and experience are now part of the Wireless Logic Group."
